FOREWORD

For nearly a century and a half Pinkerton has made a lasting impression on its students and so it is with the Class of 1963. Even though we are now in the space age, we still revere the traditions that are so significant and such a vital part of the Academy.

During the past three years the faculty have broadened our world of knowledge; the activities have taught us how to cooperate with others and the traditions have given us respect for what has passed. Ahead of us lies the substance of our lives—our future. Pinkerton has prepared us; we are ready to be “Launched”. The Class of 1963 presents this year book with its symbolic theme—“P. A., our launching pad to the future.”

MESSAGE TO THE CLASS OF 1963

To the Class of 1963:

The theme you have selected, "Pinkerton Academy—Our Launching Pad to the Future," I consider to be most appropriate. Pinkerton has certainly helped project me into things celestial—beyond my wildest student dreams. It may be that some of you will follow our first meager steps, it may be that some will provide the technical knowledge to support space activities from terrestrial stations, or it may be that you find endeavors in completely different fields. In any event, if you will accept my experience, you may be assured that your launching pad has provided you a "lift-off" second to none! My congratulations to the Class of 1963 and sincere best wishes for a successful flight.

Alan B. Shepard, Jr.
Commander, USN
Mercury Astronaut

On May 5, 1961, Pinkerton students, along with the rest of the world, watched the flight of Astronaut Alan B. Shepard, Jr. Few of us will ever forget the emotion-packed experience and the surge of pride that we felt knowing that a former P. A. student had been chosen to be the first American in space.

Commander Shepard addressed the Senior Class at Commencement, June 15, 1962. At the close of the exercises, the Shepard family presented a portrait of Alan to the Academy. It now hangs in the hall of the main building—an inspiration to all.

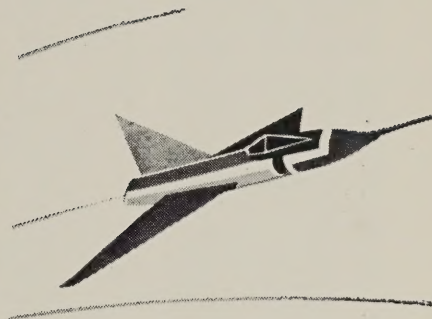

Ann R. Garland

DEDICATION

The unselfish giving of one's time is often overlooked or taken for granted, but your patience, tireless efforts, and most of all your understanding will long be remembered by the Class of 1963. It is with appreciation and gratitude that we dedicate our yearbook to you, Ann R. Garland.

Principal Ivah A. Hackler

ADMINISTRATION

The members of the Class of 1963 are grateful to the Trustees and Mr. Hackler for the fine education we have received at the Academy. We now join the scores of alumni who are proud to be graduates of Pinkerton.

ENGLISH

The teachers in the English department strive to teach us the fundamentals of grammar, composition, literature, and public speaking, so that we may become proficient in mastering the English language. English is one of the most important subjects, not only because we use it in our every day lives, but also because it is our native tongue, and therefore, mastery is essential.

SOCIAL STUDIES

In the classes which comprise Pinkerton's Social Studies Department—psychology, history, and contemporary problems—the actions of the individual are the common basis. The study of the Constitution is given stress and over the last few years an increased study of the comparison of ideologies in our world has been emphasized. With a greater knowledge of these, the students will be prepared to meet the universal problems with understanding.

MATHEMATICS

Math is a mind-developing science. In General Math, Algebra I, Algebra II, Geometry, Trigonometry and Advanced Math, we are taught to organize our thoughts. This process aids us in our other studies as well. We learn to think logically and systematically in all things. Every career calls for some knowledge of math and the Mathematics Department prepares us.

SCIENCE

Science is seeing things for what they really are. The truth is often surprising and always fascinating. Whether it be biology, physics, or chemistry, the student gains a valuable knowledge of his environment in the physical world and those elements of which it is made.

LANGUAGE

The Language Department is an important part of our Academy. A student who takes a course in a language, finds that he is not only learning the uses of it, but also that his course is enriched by delving into the cultural background, too. With the exciting exploration of other peoples' lands and languages, the student has an enrichment in his background.

To meet our future

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

To be better prepared for a business career or any other career we may choose, the Commercial Department helps us. Here we learn typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, and office practice, skills which will help us in our future, whether we enter competitive business or continue our schooling.

AGRICULTURE

The Agriculture Department provides a practical education for boys. On the school farm they learn to care for the animals and cope with the many problems that arise. In the shop they learn wood working, electrical and mechanical skills.

With the many changes in Agriculture during the past few years, the Agriculture course has been geared to the times with a great deal of emphasis placed on training for allied occupations.

MUSIC

The Music Department of Pinkerton develops a rich appreciation of melody. Knowledge of harmony is intensified in the music appreciation classes where study ranges from ancient Gregorian Chants to modern jazz. For the students who do not participate in these classes, they may express their interest in music by joining Glee Club, Band, or Chapel Choir. This year the exploration of contemporary music is being emphasized.

Robert K. Hutchins

HOME ECONOMICS

Through the areas of family and community relationship, child development, textiles, clothing, home art, housing, money and home management, foods, and nutrition, family health and consumer buying, every effort is made to provide a sound background of information for happy successful homemakers and community citizens of the future.

Evelyn S. Raymond

THE LIBRARY

The Saltmarsh Library is open to all Pinkerton students. It holds within its doors much valuable and priceless material. Along with books, reference material, magazines, pamphlets, and newspapers, it has an attractive reading room which is kept orderly and quiet for the advantage of all students. Having access to a modern library within a school can be a profitable and a valuable experience to the student.

CLASS HISTORY

Our class history unfolds many wonderful memories of our life at P. A. Each old tradition which we carried out, each teacher who guided us through a new world of knowledge, each happy hour we spent in the many activities offered us are the things we'll remember for many years to come.

We, the Class of 1963, came to Pinkerton as sophomores in the fall of 1960. We were formally accepted as members of P. A. by the juniors on Initiation Day, when they dressed us in outlandish costumes and gave us all sorts of ridiculous duties to perform. We wouldn't have admitted it at the time, but it was fun.

Shortly after, the seniors showed their acceptance of us by honoring us at the Sophomore Reception. We were then full-fledged members of P. A.

At our first class meeting, Mr. Riddervold and Miss Garland were assigned to us as Class Advisers. Organization of the class was quickly taken care of, and we were ready to function as a group. After much discussion, we chose green and white as our class colors. Each time we went to chapel we looked with pride at our banner made by Pauline Morrisette and Linda Chesleigh.

At the beginning of our junior year, we felt much more at ease and more a part of the Academy perhaps because we were no longer the youngest members, and it was our duty to initiate the new underclassmen. The arrival of our class rings in November was another bond uniting us as a class and as a symbol of our belonging to the school.

The Junior Prom was certainly a beautiful thing to behold. For many weeks we planned and worked. The Chapel was never more beautiful than it was that evening. It was truly a "Wonderland by Night." Most of us felt a twinge of sadness when we realized that our prom would probably be the last one held in the Chapel.

Our first theatrical production, "And Came The Spring," proved to be an outstanding success. We sold a record of 1391 tickets, and found that all the time and effort put into our junior play was well worth it.

Our Senior year was the most wonderful of all. We gladly took over the long-awaited Senior Privileges as soon as we arrived at school September 4, 1962.

The Corn Roast, which provided plenty of hot dogs and more than enough fun and laughter, was held in October at Chase's Grove.

"Tammy Tell Me True," our Senior Play presented in December, was another success for us. This time we broke our own record and sold 1396 tickets. The audience was enthralled not only with the play but also by the stage hands who so expertly changed the scenery.

Class pictures were taken in January, and shortly after we were measured for caps and gowns. We then realized that our days at P. A. would soon be over.

June, the traditional month of graduation, found our days packed with last-minute activities: cramming for exams, practicing for Class Day and Graduation, attending the Senior Banquet and Senior Howl, and signing yearbooks.

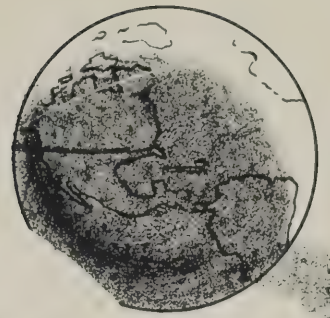

With our first appearance in our caps and gowns at Baccalaureate came the impact of the moment. Everything all came about so quickly that we hadn't had time to think about it, but we were actually graduating from Pinkerton.

On graduation day, many of us felt that we were taking one of the most important steps in our lives. As we received our diplomas, had the last pictures taken, said good-by to classmates and teachers, we felt that we were leaving three of the most wonderful years of our lives behind us.

THE CRITIC STAFF

The Staff has worked hard to recapture the highlights of our three years at Pinkerton. Our first big problem was to choose a theme and a cover design. Then came the writing and editing of the copy as we wanted to use just the right words to describe the faculty, classmates and the many activities we have participated in during our Academy days. We are especially proud of our theme as it gave us a chance to honor a famous American and a member of the Pinkerton Alumni.

The Business Staff was especially busy soliciting ads to make the yearbook a financial success.

All in all, it has been a very pleasant task producing the 1963 Critic.

LETTERWOMEN

The Letterwomen's society is a group in which the girls who have participated in the many school activities join together to support the school and the students. They strive hard to uphold school rules and spirit by working with classmates and teachers. Projects for the year include selling P. A. buttons, banners, and beanies. Duties include supervision of the girls' rooms, and the girls in chapel in the morning, and selling tickets at basketball and football games. All the girls are proud to wear their Pinkerton letters and to be leaders of the school.

Honored For Outstanding Qualities

Miss Beane, Adviser

The National Honor Society is composed of thirty-five members from the junior and senior classes. At our meetings we have had numerous guests showing slides of our country and the world. The first annual banquet was held in March. The project for the year has been raising money to purchase a trophy case for the new building. A fudge sale helped to add to the fund. The handbook will be revised and issued to the members of next year's incoming classes at the Academy. Also, the members of the society have offered their study time to tutor fellow students. This program has been very helpful and successful.

Council Ponders School Problems

The Student Council is the student government organization at Pinkerton. The Council is composed of three students from each class who represent the student body. These representatives, under the leadership of Mr. Hackler, meet frequently to solve the problems confronting the students thus establishing a democratic form of life at the Academy and preparing the students to face responsibility.

The Band's forty members participate in chapel exercises, concerts, and parades. This year the Band joined with the Raymond High School Band to give two concerts, one here and one in Raymond. The Band has given many happy and musical moments to our days at Pinkerton.

In the fall the majorettes along with the Pinkerton Band, appeared in the Veterans' Day parade in Chester, N. H. On Memorial Day they participated in a parade in Derry. The majorettes, wearing their red uniforms, added much color to the band when performing for Pinkerton Academy.

JUNIOR PLAY

Our first theatrical production at the Academy was our Junior Play, presented on the evenings of May 10 and 12 of 1962. Although the five weeks of rehearsals before opening night proved to be a lot of hard work, we found it was well worth the effort when "And Came The Spring" turned out to be a great success.

Our Junior Play was something we had looked forward to with eager anticipation for many years, and now has become one more memory which we recall with fondness.

Yoo-hoo! Alice!

SENIOR PLAY

On December 6 and December 8 of 1962, the Class of 1963 brought "Tammy" to the Adams Memorial Hall. The dramatic sketch was based on the experiences of a lovable, shy, country girl who ventured to a big college and a new life. Our class was proud to present "Tammy," for not only did the class thespians show their best, but also the class artists showed their skill in painting the background scenery of six different sets. With the direction and hard work of Miss Garland, the play was a tremendous success as witnessed by the audiences, who bought 1396 tickets to help us reach our budget quota. With the final curtain call, all took in the last glimpse of the memories of our Academy acting careers. All the excitement of the final performance was wrapped up in a dinner party given at the home of Carol Pitts, where the cast, managers, Miss Garland, and Mr. and Mrs. Hackler talked over the wonderful night to remember.

Getting to know you.

Smile, you're on Candid Camera.

Geniuses at work.

This way to a heavenly evening.

"Wonderland by Night" was the theme we used to transform the chapel for our magic evening. The committees worked hard behind closed doors preparing for the greatest night of our Junior year.

As our guests began arriving on February 16, 1962, they met our big surprise—the two little angels we'd invited. Upstairs they beheld the transformation our committees had wrought. Silver stars twinkled down from a winter sky and sparkly trees glistened in the snow as our classmates and their guests danced to the music of Mr. Hutchins' band. During an intermission refreshments were served in the adjoining room.

Next morning the cleanup committee arrived to do their job and all traces of the night's festivities vanished. Although the prom is over, it will be hard to forget the greatest night of our Junior year.

Quiet before the Prom

Principal greetings.

THE TOWER

This has been one of the most successful years for the P. A. Tower, the school newspaper. The Tower Staff has been dedicated to the improvement of the newspaper by printing more interesting and better written articles. Because of the resourcefulness of the large staff headed by a diligent editor, many excellent editions have appeared.

LIBRARY STAFF

The Library Staff consists of fifteen juniors and seniors who assist Mrs. Cornwell. The students perform various duties throughout the day, such as checking books, magazines, and newspapers, as well as keeping a record of each student who uses the library.

Sparkling Spirit And Morale

CHEERLEADERS

RED and WHITE—FIGHT!

How many times the spectators have heard this power-packed phrase at football and basketball games as the colorful cheerleaders cheer P. A.'s team on to victory. Our cheerleaders are certainly an addition as they do their cheers in unison. Most people do not realize what a wonderful school function this is, and how much work is put into it. Their uniformity does not come without practice. Many hours are spent after school rehearsing the traditional cheers and devising new ones. But this activity is far from being all chore. Friendship becomes fast between the girls on the squad, poise is gained, and the girls become an integral part of the school. Yes, with Pinkerton Academy and sports, one will always think of the cheerleaders and their RED and WHITE — FIGHT!

Broadening Our Horizons . . .

The club, composed of second and third year French students, is formed for the purpose of presenting a side other than the academic to the study of the French language. This year's activities have mostly been money-making projects, such as wreath making, a car wash, and a cookie sale, for a trip to Quebec.

Although the P. A. Latin Club, headed by Mr. MacDonald, is comparatively new, it has increased from seventeen to thirty members in one year. It was formed to further the knowledge of the Latin language and the Roman people. The club presented a play and had a busy schedule of activities for its members during the year.

Developing Our Talents . . .

After the meetings of the English Club got underway, Miss Roulston, leader of the group, had over fifty members participating in the club's activities. The club is a workshop where students having an average of B in English can further their knowledge of English in the surroundings of an informal atmosphere. Discussions included various topics concerning poetry, writing techniques, composition analysis, literary works of the past and present, and word and picture association. The meetings were also highlighted by several guest speakers.

FOOTBALL

The 1962 football season started two weeks before school opened when sixty-two players reported for the preliminary training which proved helpful to the squad.

The team's record reflected the hard work of the players and coaches. It also showed the gradual improvement in the scores as well as the smoothness of the functioning of the team. The first and second games with Sanborn and Winnicunnet were heart-breakers but the team gained confidence by upsetting the highly-rated Exeter team. The West game showed improved playing even though the score was a disappointment. The next three games demonstrated the progress of the team. The Kennett and St. John's games were romps for Pinkerton but the "finest hour" came with the defeat of Somersworth for the first time in several years.

Seniors on the team were Captain David Paul (All State Bench), Brian Thacker (All State), Tom Cushing (All State Honorable Mention), Jim Baker, Gene Dutra, Skip Greenwood, Ronnie Lee, Tim Lemieux, Gary True, and Doug White. Richard Fickett was the manager.

BASKETBALL

The Pinkerton basketball team this year lacked height but the players made up for this deficit with speed, teamwork and drive. Several times Pinkerton seemed to be overpowered by opponents but the team always made a good showing. A look at the scores shows how close many of the games were. Coaches Perry and Knowles were gratified with the 8-9 record posted for the Varsity and J.V.'s. Perhaps the best example of drive and team work was the win over Alvirne. With true Pinkerton spirit, the team came through with a 64-58 victory.

High scorers for the season were Skip Greenwood and Arthur Tsetsilas who averaged 17 and 14 points per game respectively.

Prospects for next year are good as the team is losing only two players. With more experience, the team should have a successful season.

No, it's mine!

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The 1962-1963 Girls' Basketball season has come to an end, leaving with us the memories of a successful season.

Our captain, Peggy Spooner, by her high spirit and determination to win, led our team to a record of 8 wins and 5 losses. The credit, though, must be extended to our skillful coaches, Miss Cournoyer and Miss Roulston, for their encouragement and advice throughout the season.

There were many exciting games played by both the Varsity and the Junior Varsity, but the most unforgettable were our surprise victory over Exeter, on their home court, and our come-back over Sanborn after having been defeated by a score of 40-29, with a score of our own of 39-31.

Through hard work and team cooperation, the girls completed the season with a greater understanding of sportsmanship.

FIELD HOCKEY

The senior girls' field hockey team had an exciting season even though we had several minor injuries and we did not win the cup for the first place. Every afternoon found a hardy group ready for action with the girls of the under-classes. Probably the game we will remember best is the "ruff and ready" battle with the senior boys. After a bloody combat, we emerged victorious with a score of 7-4.

BASEBALL AND TRACK

At Pinkerton, we know when spring has finally arrived as soon as the track and baseball squads are hard at work getting into condition for the season. Track is a comparatively new activity, but each year there is greater participation and more ribbons are won at meets. Baseball may not be so spectacular, but many boys enjoy the sport.
